Editor's Note

INTO THE BLUE

I like to think of this issue as the print equivalent of a swimming hole. Or at least that's the refreshing, escapist effect I hope it will have. On a hot-as-blazes summer afternoon, I know there's no place I'd rather be than somewhere by (or on) the water—whether it's a lake, beach, riverfront, or pool—and research even shows that being near the water boosts happiness and overall mental health. That was certainly the case during our first Country Living cruise, when we spent seven carefree days in March on the Caribbean with a merry crew of fun-loving readers and Amie and Jolie Sikes of the Junk Gypsies. (Stay tuned for details on our next excursion!) For an incredible beach experience closer to home, we're giving away a trip to Charleston, South Carolina, that includes a $1,000 airfare stipend, accommodations for two at Belmond Charleston Place, entry to 30+ attractions, and amazing meals at award-winning restaurants, including The Ordinary, Hominy Grill, and Charleston Grill. (Visit charleston.countryliving.com to enter; see page 110 for more details.) Of course, we're as fond of the lake as we are the ocean, which is why we teamed up with developer Russell Lands On Lake Martin to design and build the Country

> Living Lake House of the Year in Alabama. (Special thanks to CL Style Director Page Mullins for helping bring it all to life!) Finally, because we want to keep our beloved waterways clean, we've partnered with The Nature Conservancy (nature.org) to share tips on how we can all do our part in ways big and small. Look for calls to action throughout the issue, and go to hearstforhumanity.com/clwater to help The Nature Conservancy fund future projects. See you waterside!

There's a virus out there that hasn't been talked about much, and you may not have heard about it. A virus that's serious, like HIV. It's hepatitis C (Hep C). It can hide in your body for years, even decades, without symptoms. And it isn't tested for in routine blood work. If left untreated, Hep C can cause liver damage and even lead to liver cancer.

The CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) recommends all Baby Boomers get tested for Hep C. All it takes is a simple one-time blood test.

The good news is: if you have Hep C, it can be cured. Ask your healthcare provider at your next appointment to be tested for Hep C. It's the only way to know for sure.

FOR US, IT'S TIME TO GET TESTED.

Checking In

Look closely at Greydon House's facade and you see the delineation between old and new. The original 1850s building (on the right) is painted white; a recent addition on the left is light gray. That blend of past and present can be expected on an island with such reverence for its history—and it extends beyond the inviting red front door. Inside, an assortment of nautical antiques, no doubt inspired by the inn's proximity to the ferry docks, adds timeworn charm to 20 otherwise updated guest rooms. As it turns out, you may leave with some treasures of your own, like a bottle of the hotel's custom-blended fragrance ($60), a nod to Nantucket's distinctive flora. Small of Fame Sailor's Rest

Here's how Boston designer Gary McBournie turned a standard boathouse into a mini retreat (with plenty of space for the gear).

BIG IDEA!

While the 200square-foot deck is not that roomy, the rolling two-tiered "South Seas" bar cart (serenaandlily .com) maximizes space—and mobility. Should a summer shower roll in, the cart slides right back inside.

High-Flying Flags

Colorful race pennants draw the eye upward and showcase the natural wood $ceilings\ that\ Gary\ left\ unpainted$ for added character.

Foldable Furniture

White director's chairs and a collapsible dining table can rest flat against a wall to make room for gear storage in the off-season.

Small Talk

Designer Gary McBournie shares his top tips for tiny spaces.

Go Big on Personality

"With limited space, use every chance to bring in interest. Nantucket has a thriving arts community, so I pulled from local galleries."

Bridge the Gap

"Matchstick blinds (backbayshutter .com) tie together the wood floors and ceilings and pop against the beadboard walls (White Dove by Benjamin Moore)."

Use Space Where You Have It

"With tall ceilings, one great storage solution is a loft. In this living room, it stores extra boating gear that can easily be reached via a ladder."

Out of Sight, Out of Mind

"Electric necessitieswireless routers, printers-detract from a calm space. Stash them away; here, the banquette drawer serves as storage."

Blur the Indoors and Out

"Shades of blue (cotton duck upholstery, a handwoven throw) and tan (blinds, ceiling, bar cart) mirror the sea and sand outside."

Glass Floats

These translucent pieces originated in Norway in the 1800s as a way for commercial fishermen to keep large nets and droplines afloat. While plastic floats have since taken their place, the blue and green orbs remain a popular decorative element. To identify an authentic antique from a repro, search for air bubbles, striation in coloring, and thickness. (Originals are so strong that you could put your full weight on them!) Circumference is the biggest influence on price. Expect to sink $50 for a 12-inch example complete with its original rope covering, while a 2-inch float will only net $12.

Ship Wheels

Handsome and architectural, wooden ship wheels recall a bygone era of nautical history. (Modern ships typically have a compact aluminum wheel or a joystick.) Current scarcity (there was only one per ship, after all!) steers them toward a steady price of $500 to $700. One from a well-known vessel or fleet may be valued at twice that. Expect most to range in size from 30" to 40" and be crafted from oak (1, 2), brass (3), or chestnut (4).

The Collecting Life Seafarers

CL Contributor Mary Randolph Carter builds a ship-shape collection of first (and second and third and fourth...) mates.

ecause I grew up in Virginia on a three-mile-wide river with views of the mighty Chesapeake Bay, I have long been inspired by the seamen and sailors who made their living on the watery blue landscape.

I found my early haul of primitive portraits of fish boat captains in junk shops and flea markets during summer holidays on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

I later became enamored of the work of Charles Reber, a local scavenger artist and woodcarver in Nags Head. He was as much of a character as the works he created! (See my prized yellow slickered-up sea captain.) His talent for rescuing driftwood pieces and flotsam and jetsam and transforming them into one-of-a-kind maritime art made him an Outer Banks legend.

When you're on the lookout for your own fleet, I recommend scouring coastal flea markets. That's where I found many of my favorites, including a little curly-haired Shirley Temple look-alike, decked out as the heroine of the 1936 film Captain January, and my spiffy white-and-blue seaman with his oar in hand, who doubles as a bank. I have sailors carved out of wood, and some sewn from cotton.

I chose a special piece to welcome all who enter our landlocked city apartment: a portrait of a sailor by folk artist Nancy Thomas (nancythomas gallery.com) presenting the American flag in 3-D.

And now it's up to you to sail away into the waters of maritime collecting. Happy summer!

"Carter" is the author of multiple books about collecting, including Never Stop to Think... Do I Have a Place for This?

I snagged this vintage portrait of an old man on the sea on the Outer Banks.

Keep your lake great!

Did you know that 40% of the country's lakes are too polluted for swimming or fishing? Here are a few ways to right that wrong (and to conserve water in general), courtesy of The Nature Conservancy.

-1-

Gray skies? Don't fertilize.

When it rains, lawn fertilizer pollutes ground and surface water. Save the task for a sunny day.

Sanitize your boat.

Before taking your boat on the road, wash it, along with any other equipment that's been in the water, with an environmentally friendly soap that will kill "hitchhikers," aka potentially invasive species.

-3-

Use biodegradable cleaning products.

The water that goes down your drain will eventually find its way into streams, lakes, and bays. Check out brands like Puracy, Simple Green, and Mrs. Meyer's.

-4-

Water your lawn at dawn or dusk.

Water evaporates too quickly in the middle of the day, so there's no time for the ground to absorb it.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF...

Jantzen Swimsuits

WHAT THEY'RE WORTH: $200-$1,200

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW:

In 1910, Carl C. Jantzen and John and Roy Zehntbauer founded Portland Knitting Company, a manufacturer of sweaters, woolen hosiery, and more in Portland, Oregon. A few years later, when a fellow rowing club member asked them to knit a woolen suit for rowing in rainy winter, the company's swimwear destiny was set in motion. Renaming itself Jantzen Knitting Mills in 1918, the company soon became a leader in swimwear, with licensed manufacturers all over the world. Their stylish swimsuits—like the 1937 Swing Suit shown here—started showing up on movie stars and in national ads in magazines such as Cosmopolitan. The company also promoted swimming as a sport, assembling its own Jantzen Swimming Organization and sponsoring "Learn to Swim" weeks in the '30s, '40s, and '50s. More than 100 years later, Jantzen is owned by Perry Ellis International and remains synonymous with stylish and sporty swimwear.

JANTZEN SWIMSUITS THROUGH THE DECADES

1944 A favorite of Hollywood screen stars, the alamorous Capistrano was made of satin-soft Velva-lure.

1954 An ad touted Water Star's "make-believe diamonds and shape insurance for glamorous curves."

1966 Co-ed "Smile Girls" wore Jantzen Jrs. Dune Plaid Surf Suit for a "Just Wear a Smile and a Jantzen ad campaign.

1972 California Mio's high halter neckline and matching caftan epitomized the styles of the decade.

This is not just a bed.

It's the sleep experience that will change your life.

Whether you prefer supreme softness or conforming comfort layers, the Sleep Number® bed is uniquely designed for a better night's sleep. At the simple touch of a button, DualAir™ technology allows you to find ideal comfort and support with exceptional pressure relief on each side—your Sleep Number® setting.

Know. Adjust. Sleep. With optional SleepIQ® technology, the Sleep Number® bed provides a simple and intuitive way to know more about your sleep. Using sensors inside the bed, SleepIQ® technology tracks your sleep and provides you with information that empowers you to achieve your best possible sleep, night after night. There's nothing to wear, nothing to turn on. All you have to do is sleep. Our Queen c2 mattress with SleepIQ® technology is only $1,099.98.

Snoring? Now there's even an adjustment for that. Read, watch TV, surf the web and adjust your bed's firmness when you add a FlexFit™ adjustable base to your Sleep Number® mattress. Some even have a snore* feature that may temporarily relieve mild snoring in otherwise healthy adults.

"I found a ruler in my mother's childhood tackle box that she says dates back to 1911. Is she right?" -B.N., ALPINE, TX

"I have this mahogany box that opens to a flower on one side and a heart on the other-both surrounded by shells. What is it exactly?" -D.R., DETROIT, MI

WHAT IT IS: Sailor's Valentine

"It was always believed that these tokens of affection were made by sailors during their months at sea, but this example was likely made by the women of Barbados and then sold to sailors," says Heritage Auctions' Marsha Dixey. "Yours qualifies as a true 'Sailor's Valentine' because it includes the requisite flower and heart. Some include a special verse, although yours does not." It dates back to the 19th century, and based on the intricacy of the design and size of the display, yours is definitely a keeper.

WHAT IT IS: Fishing Ruler

According to Antiques Roadshow's Will Farmer, this measuring tool was actually a means for advertising. "Based on the printing on the reverse side, it would have been a practical giveaway for the Ben Franklin Stores in Crandon. Wisconsin. to economically advertise their wares," he says. "The first Ben Franklin store opened in 1927, so your ruler probably dates back to the '30s or '40s." Your nostalgic fishing gear also comes with advice about keeping any catch too small: "Be a true sportsman, if they don't measure up, put 'em back."

Sentimental Value

(BECAUSE YOU CAN'T PUT A PRICE ON EVERYTHING)

Among the tea towels and tchotchkes for sale in the gift shop of legendary British clipper ship Cutty Sark, I found a section of rigging rope, which now hangs in my writing study near my collection of books on naval history. During our five years in London, my husband and I often traveled down the Thames to Greenwich. home of the Prime Meridian and the Old Royal Naval College and—of course—the ship herself, perched in dry dock, her tea-laden days of racing around the Cape of Good Hope long behind her. We creaked reverently about her decks and looked up into the miles of rigging, in awe of this raw display of human ingenuity. A piece of rope is a humble thing, until you consider where it's been and what it's known.

"I fell in love with this very sweet, very tall lighthouse lamp. Has it always been a lamp or was it originally used for something else?" -D.M., LAS CRUCES, NM

WHAT IT IS: Folk Art Lamp

According to Heritage Auctions' Marsha Dixey, it's possible that it could have been a floor lamp, but it's far more likely that it was a homemade yard ornament and later converted into a lamp. "It's my belief that this piece was made from a kit or pattern distributed through Good Housekeeping and other women's magazines," she says.

Marionette

Unfortunately, your tiny sailor appears to be a manufactured piece that was made in the last decade or so. "This is the kind of giftware that is sold in towns by the sea," says appraiser Bene Raia. During the Victorian era, every course had its own special plate and utensil for serving and eating, including an oyster course. "Your pretty plate was made by Haviland & Company in Limoges, France, between 1888 and 1896," says appraiser Helaine Fendelman. Oyster plates are highly collectible, but sadly, single plates are not as desirable as a set. If you had a collection of 12 matching, very ornate plates, they could go for as much as $4,800.

WHAT IT IS: Tin Toy Ship

Without any markings, it's difficult to guess who the manufacturer might be. "There are several pre-war toy makers this could be attributed to, but most would have had clockwork inside with a windup key to make them run like a real boat," says Heritage Auctions' Marsha Dixey. "This one does not appear to have those mechanisms. so the value is going to be somewhat less."

Ask a Country Vet

Animal expert DR. TRICIA EARLEY answers questions about beach-bound pups, wary kitties, and backyard turtles.

It's such a hassle to get our dogs clean after a day at the beach or pool, but we don't want to leave the salt water or chlorinated water on their coats for too long. Are there any dog-friendly dry shampoos or quick fixes we can employ until we have time to give them a bath? E.K., Richmond, VA

I agree that it's important to remove salt water and chlorine as soon as possible, as they can dry out the coat and skin. Waterless shampoos are really best for a quick deodorizing-say, on those occasions when you don't want to subject your friendly veterinarian to a less-thanfresh-smelling pooch, but you don't have time to bathe him. These shampoos aren't so great at actually removing substances like salt and chlorine. The truth is, nothing replaces a good rinsing. I recommend finding a hose, outdoor shower, or even bringing a pitcher of water for the specific purpose of giving your dogs a quick rinse. When you get home, use a moisturizing canine shampoo, such as an oatmeal-based product, that will provide a more thorough cleaning without stripping their coats of essential oils.

We just arrived at the lake for a long summer stay, and our cabin has window AC units. My cat, Lucy, hides under my bed whenever I turn them on. I don't want her to be unhappy, but it's too hot to go without the AC! Is there anything I can do to help her get used to the noise? Do I need to be concerned about the air quality?

K.P., Lansing, MI

The term "scaredy cat" was likely made up by dogs! Most felines should be referred to as "smarty cats"—they are by nature self-preservationists. When exposed to an unfamiliar or threatening sound, their instinct is to take cover first and rationalize later. Don't force Lucy out from under the bed. Cats seek cover to feel safe while they calm down. Instead, try to retrain her to associate something positive with the sound of the AC. Here's an easy exercise: Turn the unit off and on for a few minutes. Each time it comes on, offer Lucy her favorite food or treat. Eventually, your kitty will find herself coming to you for a treat every time she hears the AC instead of running for cover. Your cat should also enjoy the same air quality that you do. To that end, keep up with air filtration and maintenance so that everyone can enjoy a peaceful and healthy vacation.

SPENDING TOO MUCH TIME IN THE BATHROOM?

If you're spending too much time in the bathroom, you're not alone. Your symptoms may be caused by a digestive condition called EPI, or exocrine pancreatic insufficiency. Even if you have just one of these symptoms, you could still have EPI.

- Frequent diarrhea
- Unexplained weight loss
- Oily, foul-smelling stools that float
- Gas and bloating
- Stomach pain

EPI is a manageable condition, so don't keep a lid on it. Go to CouldItBeEPI.com, complete the symptom checker, and talk to your doctor about your symptoms. Find out if it could be EPI.

We recently added a turtle to our backvard pond. We do regular maintenance to make sure the water levels are high enough, but I'm worried our turtle could suffer from dehydration in the hot summer months. What signs should I look out for?

F.S., Columbus, MS

Being reptiles, turtles depend on their environment to regulate a normal body temperature. It's very possible for turtles to overheat, so you're smart to maintain adequate water levels in your pond, allowing it to seek deeper, cooler water. There are definitely warning signs if and when your turtle is suffering. If his eyes are sunken or remain closed, seek help from a reptile-savvy veterinarian right away. Check his skin carefully because wrinkled, flaky skin can be another sign of dehydration. It's hard to evaluate a turtle for lethargy, as they aren't exactly known for chasing Frisbees. But if you notice that your turtle is staying in the same spot for an excessively long time, showing little interest in eating or foraging, it's time to take a trip to the vet. Provide your turtle with plenty of shade and aquatic plants those will also help him stay cool all summer long.

How safe is human sunscreen for pet consumption? Our dog, Sally, sometimes gets in my beach bag and licks my bottle of sunscreen. She has not shown any symptoms, but is this something I should be concerned about?

K.N., Charlotte, NC

There are a few things to be aware of if your dog can't resist tasting a fragrant glob of sunscreen. For the most part, ingestion of a small amount merely causes an upset stomach. However, some products contain ingredients that can be harmful if ingested in sufficient quantities. Zinc oxide, often found in sunscreen and diaper rash ointment, has the potential to cause serious anemia. Lethargy and pale gums are the most common clinical signs of this type of hemolytic anemia. Salicylates, an aspirin-like product, can also be found in sunscreen, as it assists in UVB protection. If ingested in sufficient quantities, it can cause vomiting, diarrhea, and gastrointestinal ulceration. Cats are particularly sensitive to aspirin products. PABA (para-aminobenzoic acid) has the potential to cause gastric upset if ingested in sufficient quantities. If Sally shows any of these symptoms, get her to the vet immediately. All this is not to say that dogs shouldn't wear sunscreen. Dogs with exposed pink or white skin, like that on the ears or bridge of the nose, can benefit from it on sunny days. Be sure to look for one intended specifically for pets, and check the label just to make sure that it doesn't contain any of these potentially harmful substances.

Oh, Mary. There's nothing worse than getting worked up about lying down. Many pools, resorts, and cruise lines have chair-holding policies, ranging from 40 minutes to 3 hours, to temper this frustration. If the "mystery guest" hasn't shown up within the outlined window, ask staff if they'll help you clear out space. In the absence of a clear policy, though, consider three unattended hours a reasonable limit to enforce. Deliver the offending belongings to pool staff—that way, they're safe and sound and you can feign ignorance should the person return: "Oh, that stuff? I think the pool staff grabbed it," as you casually sip on a margarita.

Baltimore's story is America's story.

That's what I love about this town. Everyone knows we have Poe's grave and Fort McHenry, home of "The Star-Spangled Banner." But we also have the first African-American-owned shipyard. Baltimore's railroads helped win the Civil War. And even today, Baltimore reflects a larger American story. Plus the crab cakes are unbeatable, the music scene is fantastic and we have a heck of a ballpark. Plan your visit today.

Mike Rowe
TV Personality, Lifelong Improviser

ary Barrett was 16 years old when her parents bought a vacation home in Maine's Boothbay Harbor. And while the Georgia resident loved summers spent by the shore, she never imagined she'd one day own her own piece of the Pine Tree State, much less a historic place just a mile from where it all began. But in 2009, when an early 1900s home in need of a little love hit the market in an area of Boothbay Harbor known as Juniper Point, Mary and her husband, Xavier Duralde, took the leap and set sail on a seven-month renovation. "We'd been visiting the area with our four children since they were born, but never planned on buying," she says. "But when I stood on the porch of the little red cottage and spotted my parents' house just across the water, I got goose bumps. It just felt right." Here's how Mary artfully designed a casual coastal retreat in keeping with her state's "Vacationland" slogan.

Vacationland Rule #1: No Fussy Furniture

Wet swimsuits? Bring 'em on! Mary scoured secondhand shops for weather-resistant wovens-rattan, wicker, and bamboo—that can take a beating indoors or out. "We live a lot of life in this house," she says. "No one wants to spend time worrying about the upholstery." Similarly, indoor/ outdoor rugs (seen throughout the home) stand up to flip-flop traffic-and errant ice cream scoops. "Our rugs have passed the family reunion test," Mary says. "Once they've withstood 16 sets of feet, knocked-over wineglasses, and a whole spilled platter of pesto-covered appetizers, you know they can hold up to pretty much anything."

Vacationland Rule #2: Layer in a Little Kitsch

A vacation home shouldn't take itself too seriously. With that anything-goes spirit, Mary peppers her more curated collectibles with unapologetically playful finds, like souvenir plates (above), sailboat-printed lampshades (living room, left), and statethemed barware (dining room, not shown). And if there's a ship wheel on sale, you can bet Mary will steer her way toward it. "I always have my eye out for all things nauticalsea captain bookends, seagull pencil sharpeners, you name it," she says.

Vacationland Rule #4: Run for Cover

In addition to adding a graphic decorative punch (and allowing guests to warm up to their liking), antique quilts make for an easy grab-and-go for picnics and lawn parties, as well as charming table cloths. "They come in particularly handy in the early morning and late evening on the porch," says Mary. "When Prince William and Kate Middleton got married, it was a chilly April morning, so my mom and I wrapped up in quilts, drinking tea and wearing big hats in honor of the occasion."

Vacationland Rule #3: Sleep a Crowd

Spare rooms are often, well, spare. To create a truly layered, lived-in sleepaway space, Mary crowded and cozied up the guest rooms with a host of vintage seascapes. "I've been scooping up seascapes for so long I didn't even realize how many I had until I decided to hang them in here!" says Mary, whose favorite local sources for such include Wiscasset Village Antiques (wiscassetvillageantiques.com) and the Nobleboro Antique Exchange (antiquex.net). No-frills bamboo shades add warmth and texture without detracting from the coastal elements in the bedrooms-porthole mirrors. buoys, map lampshades—that further the collected, beenaround-forever feel.

ccording to Country Living Style Director Page Mullins, there's only one nonnegotiable rule of lake house design: Don't block the view. And that's certainly understandable when you set foot on the waterfront property of the Country Living Lake House of the Year, a collaboration with Nashville architect Jonathan Torode (Pfeffer Torode Architecture), builder Chad Calhoun (Classic Homes), and Russell Lands On Lake Martin, a high-end real estate developer on this Alabama lake, just two hours from Birmingham and roughly 2.5 from Atlanta (see page 85). "The design is less about being 'timeless' and more about creating a place where people lose track of time," says Jonathan. And because some Russell Lands residents choose to live on Lake Martin year-round, Page fought the urge to "lake it up" indoors and instead designed a space that counterbalances more rustic elements (wood beams, a stone fireplace) with effortlessly elegant furniture, finishes, and fixtures. Or, in happy hour-at-the-lake speak: the "sauvignon blanc" equivalent of a lake house as opposed to the "six-pack" interpretation. Still, thanks to durable materials (nubby linens, performance velvets, sisal and rag rugs), nothing feels particularly precious or too formal. Here's how the Country Living team, with the help of our partners, brought a dream lake house to life.

Fair-Feathered Friends

In the entry, a pair of pelicans (1) from Nostalgia Fine Art (nostalgiafineart .com) greets visitors, while a bluestone-topped console table (2) (universal furniture.com) offers a pretty perch for mail.

Open-Floor Policy

The ample living space accommodates larger groups (hello, holidays at the lake!), but to make it feel more intimate year-round, Page carved out four distinct spaces for dining, reading, lounging, and card-playing.

Unobtrusive Lighting

In keeping with the don't-block-the-view mantra, the room's sole overhead light fixture (3), an artisan-crafted piece inspired by gas lanterns (lowcountryoriginals.com), hangs street-side.

sauces. See sparklingice .com for more.

Wood Finishes

Lake Martin's heavily wooded landscape inspired the home's overall design, as well as the interior finishes, such as tongueand-groove pine walls (4), the cedar ceiling (5), and the stained, pecky cypress kitchen island (6). "We're primarily surrounded by plaster and Sheetrock in our day-to-day lives," says Jonathan. "Walking into a cabin that's wood inside and out removes us from that everyday and shifts us into a relaxed mind-set."

Mixed Materials

In addition to the assorted wood finishes, reinforced by the barstools (7) (universalfurniture.com) and an antique trestle table (8), a broad range of fixture finishes sets a relaxed, notmatchy tone. Copper lighting (9) (lowcountryoriginals.com) blends well with stainless appliances (10), polished chrome faucets (11), quartz countertops (London Grey by Caesarstone) (12), and the Pearl Ash subway tile in the kitchen and pantry (13).

Nature's Neutrals

Page embraced an interior palette that downplays the delineation between the indoors and out: Blues, greens, and browns, as seen on the bedding (14) (pineconehill.com) and the Flax Boucle bed and mattress (15) (sleep number.com) in the master bedroom and the earthy coverlet fabric (16) (fschumacher.com) paired with a Stone Linen headboard (17) (sleep number.com) in the guest room keep the scene serene.

Upcycled Finds

An antique demijohn (18) repurposed into a lamp base adds a nice touch of "crust" to an otherwise buttoned-up space.

Sheer Shades

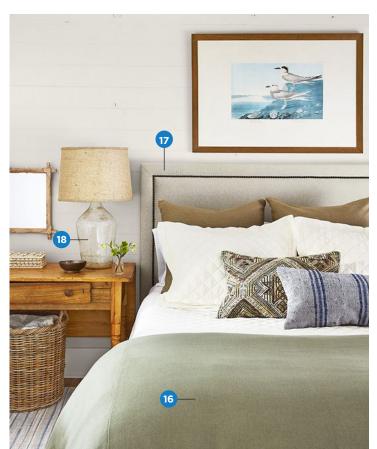

Throughout the home, jute window treatments (19) (Belize Sand downstairs; Fiji in Mist upstairs; smithandnoble .com) offer privacy and texture without blocking coveted sunlight.

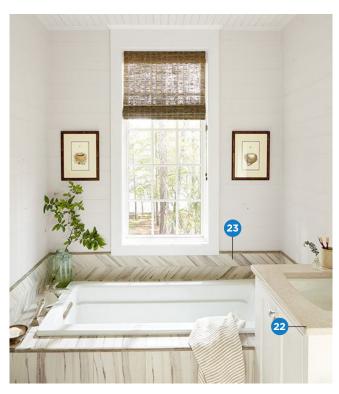

Floral Draperies

Linen panels (20) ("Wild Thing" in the cobalt/copper colorway by Carleton V) add a feminine touch to the master bedroom and pair well with two handsome antique striped wingbacks (21).

Herringbone Stone

The master bathroom has a spa-like feel thanks to ample natural light, quartz countertops (22) (Shitake by Caesarstone), and printed porcelain tile (23) arranged in a classic pattern around the oversize bathtub.

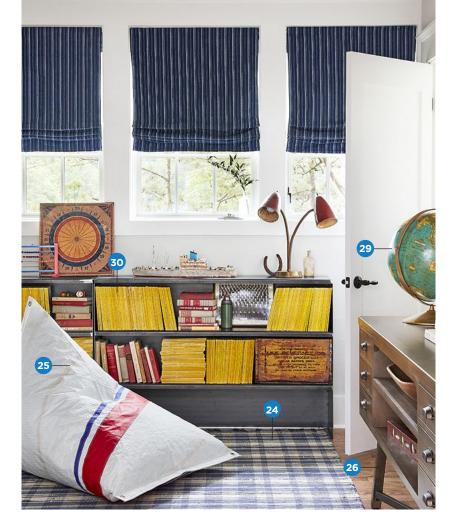

Rugged Rugs

Page primarily used sisal and oushak rugs downstairs (fibreworks .com for the former; kingshouseantiques.com for the latter) and turned to durable rag rugs (24) on the second floor (Neddick in the game room; Kittery in the twin bedroom, both available to the trade at pattersonflynnmartin .com). An indoor/outdoor recycled sail pouf (25) in a cozy playroom offers an equally durable spot to plop down. (If sailcloth can handle the sea, it can handle damp swim trunks!)

Smart Furniture

A modern-rustic console (universalfurniture.com) (26) displays the television while storing odds and ends underneath. In the kids' bedroom, a vintage desk (27) is a convenient nightstanddesk in one.

Whimsical Windows

Indigo shades featuring a globe pattern (28) (peterdunham.com) strike a youthful note but could easily transition to an office space or more grownup guest room down the road. Vintage globes (29) and a healthy National Geographic collection (30) in the nearby playroom reinforce a spirit of wanderlust.

S'mores Central

A pair of iconic, clean-lined Kentucky stick chairs (31) (kentuckystickchairs .etsy.com) adds a layer of sophistication to the natural stone fire pit-echoing the rustic-meets-refined approach to the interior.

veryone in Provincetown, Massachusetts, knows "Blue Shutters." The weather-beaten gray cottage with the telltale shutters has been a local landmark since it was built in 1840 out on its own small wharf reaching into Cape Cod Bay. Grocer N.C. Brooks built the house facing the water because that's where all the action was—a steady stream of fishermen and merchants shouted all day long about their hauls.

Post Brooks, the house sat empty for around 12 years and became something of a local curiosity—locals made it their business to peek through the privets and create their own narratives until artists Florence and Jacques Salvan came to town in 1953. They brought with them a decidedly nautical theme. Inspired by the shutters and the view, the couple refinished and painted the floors a bright blue, added porthole windows to their galley kitchen, and incorporated murals depicting coastal scenery. (Florence even painted a lobster dinner on the icebox.)

Today, the cottage retains almost every bit of that 1950s Bohemian charm thanks to retired antiques dealer Stephen Score and his wife, artist Eleanor. The moment the Scores saw the place, they immediately embraced everything the Salvans had left behind—the warped and chippy wood, a treasure trove of furnishings in the attic, and a completely outfitted kitchen. "It's a place that's an antidote to the heaviness and seriousness of the world," says Stephen. "It's like living on a boat, but, thank God, without the boat."

Living Room

The open floor plan allows for unobstructed views of the Atlantic Ocean. The Scores created a living room with a mix of seating, including a petite sofa (a favorite perch for Cubbie). and an old blue rocker. The yellow upholstered swivel chair—one of a pair that Eleanor scored from her mother—is the perfect beach house option. Swivel one way for conversation, turn the other way for ocean views. The rug was an estate sale purchase on nearby Commercial Street 15 years ago.

Kitchen & Dining Room

The Scores love to host impromptu dinner parties in their dining room, which features a rustic table—a 1900s garden sorting table—a mix of yellow and blue Windsor chairs, and folk art they've collected along with pieces the Salvans left behind, like the ship and the refrigerator door. Shelves and cupboards teem with vintage kitchenware that came with the house, including red-striped Libbey drinking glasses and the bread box by folk artist Peter Hunt.

Sitting Room

A sitting nook across from the living area is filled with eye candy, including a mixed-media collage by Eleanor that illustrates the main pier and church on the East End of the town, a barrel by famous Cape Cod folk artist Peter Hunt, and "relaxed, unpretentious, and a bit kooky" pieces like the Suckers fish bait sign and the carved whale.

Bedrooms

The Scores call dibs on the master bedroom, with its unusual wall hangings-a 19th-century American hooked rug and a quilt made from denim by master quilter Gerald Roy. But the twin beds are up for grabs. The walls and ceilings in the guest room are exactly as they were when the couple moved in. Says Stephen, "I enjoy a lovely old patinathe crackling and crazing of paint layers instead of things that have been scraped down and refinished within an inch of their lives."

Beer-Battered Seafood

MAKES 8 servings WORKING TIME 1 hour, 30 minutes TOTAL TIME 1 hour, 30 minutes

Canola oil for frying

- 1/2 cup coarsely ground cornmeal
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour, divided

Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper

- 1 (12-ounce) can lager-style beer
- 1 pound skinless cod or perch, cut into 8 strips
- 1 pound large (21/25 count) peeled and deveined shrimp (tails left on)
- 16 clams, shucked
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced, plus wedges, for serving

Tartar Sauce. Mignonette. Chimichurri, hot sauce, and malt vinegar, for serving

- 1. Heat $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches oil in a large Dutch oven over medium-high heat to 375°F (measure temperature with a deep-fry thermometer).
- 2. Meanwhile, whisk together cornmeal, paprika, baking soda, 1 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and 1/2 teaspoon pepper in a bowl. Add beer and whisk to combine.
- 3. Place remaining 1/2 cup flour in a bowl. Season with salt and pepper. Add fish, shrimp, clams, and lemon slices and toss to coat lightly.
- 4. Working with a few pieces at a time, remove seafood and lemons from flour, shaking off excess, and dip in batter, letting excess drip back into bowl. Carefully add to hot oil, being careful not to overcrowd the pot. Fry until golden brown and cooked through, 1 to 2 minutes per side. Transfer to a paper towel-lined plate. Season with salt.
- 5. Serve with lemon wedges, Tartar Sauce, Mignonette, Chimichurri, hot sauce, and malt vinegar.

Tartar Sauce

Whisk together 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 2 Tbsp. chopped dill pickles or relish, and 1 Tbsp. each fresh lemon juice, capers, and whole-grain mustard in a bowl. Season with kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper. Add more lemon juice, if desired. Makes 2/3 cup.

Mignonette

Combine 1/2 cup red wine vinegar and 1 small, finely chopped shallot in a bowl. Season with kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper. Let sit at least 30 minutes or up to 24 hours. Makes 1/2 cup.

Chimichurri

Combine 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley, 1/4 cup white wine vinegar, 2 Tbsp. olive oil, 2 cloves chopped garlic, 1 seeded and chopped jalapeño, and 1 Tbsp. chopped fresh oregano in a bowl. Season with kosher salt. Makes 2/3 cup.

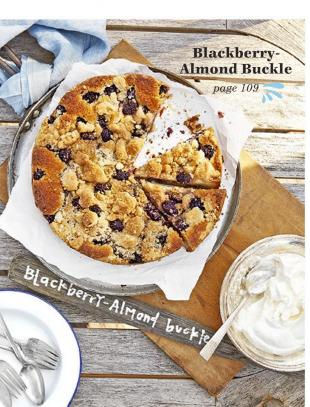

Crab Hush Puppies

MAKES 8 servings WORKING TIME 40 minutes TOTAL TIME 40 minutes

Canola oil, for frying

- 1 cup coarsely ground cornmeal
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled
- 3/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda Kosher salt
 - 2 scallions, finely chopped
 - 1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh chives
 - 8 ounces claw crabmeat (11/2 cups), picked over
 - 4 ounces Gruyère cheese, grated (about 1 cup)
 - 1 cup buttermilk
 - 1 large egg
- 1. Heat $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches oil in a large Dutch oven over medium-high heat to 350°F (measure temperature with a deep-fry thermometer).

- 2. Meanwhile, whisk together cornmeal, flour, baking powder, cayenne, baking soda, and 3/4 teaspoon salt in a bowl. Add scallions and chives and whisk to combine. Add crabmeat and cheese and stir with a fork to combine. Make a well in the center, add buttermilk and egg, and mix until just combined.
- 3. Drop tablespoonfuls of batter into hot oil, being careful not to overcrowd the pot, and fry, turning occasionally, until golden brown, 3 to 5 minutes. Transfer to a paper towel-lined plate. Season with salt. Repeat with remaining batter.

Tomato-Cucumber Salad

MAKES 8 servings WORKING TIME 30 minutes TOTAL TIME 1 hour, 35 minutes

- 1 small red onion, thinly sliced
- 2 teaspoons coriander seeds
- 2 teaspoons mustard seeds
- 1 teaspoon cumin seeds
- 1 cup cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar

Kosher salt

- 3 large tomatoes, sliced 1/2 inch thick
- 1 English cucumber, sliced Olive oil, for serving

1/3 cup fresh cilantro

1. Place onion in a glass or ceramic bowl. Cook coriander and mustard seeds in a large saucepan over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until seeds begin to pop. 1 to 2 minutes. Add cumin seeds and cook, stirring, until fragrant, 10 seconds. Add vinegar, sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, and 1 cup water. Simmer, stirring occasionally, until sugar and salt are dissolved, 1 to 2 minutes. Pour vinegar mixture over onion. Let stand until room temperature. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour or up to 2 days. Drain, reserving 1/4 cup pickling liquid.

2. To serve, arrange tomatoes, cucumber, and onion on a platter. Drizzle with oil and reserved pickling liquid. Top with cilantro.

Scallion Baked Beans

MAKES 8 servings WORKING TIME 40 minutes TOTAL TIME 15 hours, 25 minutes

- 1/4 cup olive oil, divided
- 2 yellow onions, sliced

Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper

- 3 garlic cloves, thinly sliced
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme
- 2 medium yellow squash thinly sliced, divided
- 2 tablespoons Diion mustard
- 1 tablespoon pure honey

- 1 pound dried white beans, such as navy, Great Northern, or cannellini, soaked overnight and drained
- 4 cups chicken stock
- 1 bunch scallions. trimmed
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1. Preheat oven to 300°F. Heat 2 tablespoons oil in a Dutch oven or large ovenproof pot over mediumhigh heat. Add onions and season with salt and pepper. Cook, stirring often, until soft and beginning to brown, 8 to 10 minutes. Add garlic, thyme, and 1 squash and cook, stirring occasionally, until soft. 8 to 10 minutes (add up to 1/4 cup water if pot starts to get too dark). Stir in Dijon and honey.
- 2. Add beans, stock, and 1 cup water. Cover and transfer to oven. Bake until beans are nearly tender, $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 hours.

- 3. Meanwhile, toss scallions, remaining squash, and 2 tablespoons oil in a bowl. Season with salt and pepper. Uncover pot, stir in vinegar, and top with squash and scallions. Bake, uncovered, until beans are tender and liquid is reduced and thickened, 1 to $1^{1/2}$ hours.
- 4. Turn oven to broil. Broil until scallions and squash are golden and lightly charred, 4 to 6 minutes.
- 5. Cool slightly before serving.

Blackberry-Almond Buckle

MAKES 8 to 10 servings WORKING TIME 40 minutes TOTAL TIME 1 hour, 45 minutes

Streusel

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled
- 1/2 cup almond meal
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt

4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) unsalted butter, cut up

Cake

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, at room temperature, plus more for pan
- 1 cup all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled
- 3/4 cup almond meal
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 cup sugar
- 2 large eggs
- 1/2 cup crème fraîche, plus more for serving
- 10 ounces (about 2 1/2 cups) fresh or frozen blackberries (thawed and drained)

For the Streusel

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Whisk together sugar, flour, almond meal, and salt in a bowl. Work in butter until mixture is crumbly. Refrigerate until ready to use.

For the Cake

- 1. Butter a 9 by 2-inch deep cake pan and line the bottom with parchment paper.
- 2. Whisk together flour, almond meal, baking powder, salt, and baking soda in a bowl. Beat butter and sugar with an electric mixer on medium speed until light and fluffy, 3 to 4 minutes. Add eggs, one at a time, beating to incorporate after each addition and scraping down sides of bowl as necessary. Reduce mixer speed to low and beat in flour mixture and crème fraîche alternately, beginning and ending with the flour mixture, just until flour is incorporated.
- 3. Transfer batter to prepared pan. Top with blackberries and streusel. Bake until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean, 60 to 70 minutes. Let cool slightly.
- 4. Serve with crème fraîche alongside.
